

WARRANT ISSUED FOR ARREST OF PHILLIPS, GEORGIA G. O. P. CHIEF, ON WAR FRAUD CHARGE

British Troops Retake Town From Sinn Fein

TOWN ON BORDER FALLS IN ATTACK BY STRONG FORCE

All Branches of Army Represented in Powerful Force Flung Into Irish Conflict.

MACHINE GUN FIRE ON SIX-MILE FRONT

Great Forces of British Troops Arrive in Ulster, and More Are Reported Coming.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
London, June 4.—Infantry, cavalry, artillery and whippet tanks took part in the first offensive action of the British troops on the Ulster border early this afternoon, when Pettigo, which straddled the line, though a large part of the town is in free state territory, was stormed and retaken from troops of the Irish republican army, who entered on May 30.

Reports from Belfast describe the border countryside as swarming with khaki, while the British general directs the operations from headquarters on the hill outside the town.

When it became evident that the British were moving in force against Pettigo, the republicans began to withdraw, consequently there was little resistance to parties of soldiers in motor cars and on foot who dashed through the town shortly after noon. It is semi-officially announced that the republicans suffered heavy losses, but the sole casualty on the northern side was the driver of a motor car.

Commandant Captured.
Besides the republican commandant and staff, who were taken prisoner when the troops entered the town, it is reported that a large number of Sinn Feiners were captured in a later clean-up of Pettigo. Of three columns of troops which last evening began advancing into the section of Fermanagh county occupied by the southerners, two columns operated toward Pettigo, the other in the direction of Belleek, which the republicans had also occupied.

At noon the troops had approached to within a mile of Pettigo without drawing the fire of the southerners, who were then evacuating the place and the hills which dominated the main road along the line of march. While on the Free State side there was complete silence, the greatest activity was displayed by the approaching columns, with maneuvering cavalry, specials in motor cars and whippet tanks flying the Union Jack. The tanks always were in readiness to move to the support of the advancing columns.

Uninterrupted Advance.
The Pettigo columns made an uninterrupted advance, but the smaller party of troops were held on Boa Island, ready to land if necessary and join the advance on the town. Howlers were placed in position near Belleek, where troops were massed awaiting orders to go forward.

The auxiliary pandora and numerous little armed motorcraft participated in the movement. Pandora conveyed across the lake a regular fleet of small boats to be used as transports.

Additional British troops reached Belfast today.

HOT MACHINE GUN FIRE.
Belfast, June 4.—Military forces today captured Pettigo and captured republican prisoners, as well as a large quantity of arms and ammunition.

One account says that after a heavy bombardment the British troops stormed Pettigo in the afternoon. A hot machine gun fire was poured on the attacking forces, but the only casualties was an automobile driver, who was shot dead.

The commander of the Irish republican army and his staff are reported to have been captured.

A semi-official version of the fighting is quoted by the correspondent of The Belfast Telegraph, who says: "The military entered Pettigo shortly after 1 o'clock in the afternoon and were fired on by the republicans. The artillery came into action and the republicans are believed to have suffered fairly heavy losses. The military have consolidated the positions."

It is said that the commander at

New Trial Will Be Asked Today For Mrs. Vinson

Sam Hewlett Confident Supreme Court Will Set Verdict Aside.

A motion for a new trial will be filed Monday in the case of Mrs. Cora Lou Vinson, who was convicted Saturday in the Fulton superior court on a charge of first degree murder growing out of the killing of her husband, Dr. W. D. Vinson, and who was sentenced to be hanged by Judge John D. Humphries after the jury had returned a verdict of guilty without recommendation.

Attorney Sam Hewlett, one of the leading lawyers for Mrs. Vinson, declared Sunday that the motion will be made and that all records and papers connected with the motion will be ready for submission to the court Saturday.

Mr. Hewlett expressed confidence that the higher court would set aside both the verdict and the judgment in the case on the ground that they were not justified by the evidence in the case and were contrary to law. Mr. Hewlett and his associate, Judge Newton D. Morris, will fight the case to the last and will spare no effort to have the jury's verdict annulled Saturday set aside by the supreme court.

The action of the jury in imposing the extreme penalty on Mrs. Vinson created widespread comment Sunday as this is the second time in the history of the state that a white woman has been given the death sentence.

The members of the jury agreed that the evidence in the case justified the imposition of the death penalty according to J. H. Haralson, one of the members. He said the jury weighed all the evidence carefully and that its verdict was based solely on the evidence.

The jury returned the death penalty verdict although Solicitor-General John A. Boykin, who prosecuted Mrs. Vinson, only asked for a life sentence, stating that he had never asked for a death penalty to be imposed on a white woman.

Mrs. Vinson was sentenced to be hanged July 26 by Judge Humphries. An appeal to the supreme court in the case will act as an automatic stay of execution if a decision is not returned by that body prior to July 28.

Only One Other Case.
Search of old records Sunday failed to disclose any cases where a woman had been hanged in Georgia except in the case mentioned in The Constitution Sunday, which was explained by S. G. McLendon, secretary of state. The woman was named Susan Eberhardt and she was hanged in Webster county in 1872, during the administration of Governor James M. Smith.

Judge John S. Candler informed The Constitution that there was another case beside the one mentioned by Secretary McLendon but a comparison of notes developed the fact that both Judge Candler and Secretary McLendon were referring to the Eberhardt case.

The Eberhardt woman was convicted of entering into a conspiracy with a man named Spann to kill Spann's wife. The deed was committed and both Spann and Mrs. Eberhardt were hanged. Judge Candler stated that the refusal of Governor Smith to commute the woman's sentence made him very unpopular for a time.

Another Woman Sentenced.
Another interesting sidelight on the question of how many women have been sentenced to death in Georgia was sent to The Constitution Sunday by J. F. Simmons, correspondent at Jasper. He points out that a case where a white woman was sentenced to be hanged in Pickens county. The woman was named Kate Souther and she killed a woman named Mamie White in 1873 or 1874. She was tried before Judge George N. Lester and was defended by Colonel W. H. Simmons.

An interesting coincidence connected with this case is that she was the second white woman sentenced to be hanged during the administration of Governor James M. Smith, according to the records so far produced. Governor Smith, after refusing to commute the death sentence of Susan Eberhardt, took a different course of action in the case of Kate Souther and commuted her sentence to life imprisonment. The Souther woman was paroled after serving about four years of her sentence.

According to Mr. Simmons, the Souther woman stabbed Mamie White at a dance. Mamie White was dancing with Kate Souther's husband, and in a fit of jealousy Mrs. Souther borrowed a knife from her father and killed Mamie White.

PREACHERS SCORE DRY LAW ATTACK BY JUDGE POWELL

Resolutions Are Passed by Methodist Church and Sunday School in College Park.

POWELL IS CONFIDENT HIS VIEWS ARE SOUND

Lawyer Declares, However, That He Does Not Intend to Be Drawn Into Any Controversy.

Reiterating his complete belief in the soundness of his views outlined in a speech delivered last week at the meeting of the State Bar association at Savannah in which he declared that the present "dry" laws are doing more harm than good, Judge Arthur G. Powell stated Sunday that he would not be drawn into any controversy with anyone on this subject.

He asserted that he was not speaking particularly on the subject of the prohibition laws but used them as one of several illustrations in which he pointed out the danger of passing too drastic laws.

Judge Powell Scored.
Further attacks on Judge Powell's speech were made Sunday by prominent Atlanta ministers, among them being Rev. T. R. Kendall, pastor of the Inman Park Methodist church, and in resolutions adopted by the Methodist church of College Park and its Sunday school.

Judge Powell declared that he had simply asserted in his speech at Savannah that many laws, even designed for good purposes, could bring about bad results by being too drastic and too impetuous. He stated that he had expected to become the target for some people to fire upon but stated that he retained the views he expressed, but will not enter into any controversy with anyone on the subject.

Rev. Caleb R. Ridley, pastor of the Central Baptist church, in his sermon Sunday night, mildly criticized Judge Powell for being "inconsistent but said conditions would not be improved in Georgia if prohibitionists 'go hog wild in denouncing Judge Powell'."

Dr. Ridley's Views.
In discussing the case Rev. Mr. Ridley said:
"I have been asked for my opinion of Judge Powell's reference to the prohibition laws of Georgia, and I hesitate because it is difficult to say what I am about to say without being misunderstood."

"In the first place, Judge Powell did not do himself justice nor did he cause any good in his speech. He is capable of saying better things. His speech is a network of inconsistencies and its logic is not impregnable."

"In the second place I should like

RUSS AMBASSADOR LOSES OUT IN U. S.

Bakhmeteff, Appointed by Kerensky, Notified Credentials No Longer Acceptable to U. S. Government.

Washington, June 4.—Boris Bakhmeteff, whose status as Russian ambassador here has been a subject of controversy since the Kerensky government which appointed him collapsed five years ago has been notified by the state department that his credentials no longer will be recognized by the United States after June 30.

The department acted after Mr. Bakhmeteff himself, taking notice of senate criticism of his continued presence here, had offered to retire should the Washington government desire it. The work of liquidating property claims growing out of the war, the ambassador said, had been his chief function in recent months and now was about completed.

Recognition Unaffected.

Enormous Crowd Throngs Piedmont Park to Hear Open Air Organ Recital

SENATE IRRITATED OVER SNAIL PACE OF TARIFF DEBATE

At Present Rate of Progress, It Will Take Over Year to Finally Pass Measure.

SOLDIER BONUS BILL, IN MEANTIME, WAITS

Republicans and Democrats Waste Further Time Debating Responsibility for Many Delays.

BY GEORGE C. CONGDON, JR.
A crowd such as never has been seen before on Sunday afternoon at Piedmont park, at 3:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon was given the first municipal organ recital to ever be given in the open air in Atlanta, when The Constitution inaugurated transmission of the regular Sunday afternoon recital by Charles A. Sheldon, Jr., city organist, to the park.

At the same time the music was going to Piedmont park for the pleasure of thousands of people spending their Sunday afternoon there, it was being broadcast from WDAV to unnumbered radio enthusiasts scattered over a score of states.

Amplified and faithfully reproduced by the most modern of loud-speaking devices, the Western Electric, the tones from the deep-throated organ swelled and reached over an area of fully 500 feet in radius from the bandstand where the loud-speaking apparatus was located.

Augmented Program.
A program of more than a dozen numbers was given. It was the regular organ recital program of eight numbers augmented by two vocal solos by Jack R. Hornady, tenor, and three French horn selections by Earle A. Helton, both of whom have pleased radio audiences of The Constitution before. As the radio audience and the crowd at Piedmont park were receiving the program, another audience at the Auditorium was hearing it first hand, but hardly better than the radio and Piedmont park audiences.

The transmission of the program yesterday to Piedmont park marked a new era in the municipal organ recitals, for from now on thousands of Atlantans will be able to hear this greatest of municipal music treats in the whole south in one of the south's most beautiful parks.

Long before 3:30 o'clock, the time for beginning of the organ recital, crowds gathered around the bandstand eager to hear the notes of the third largest organ in the United States for the first time in the open air and to enjoy the big augmented

ST. MARK'S CHURCH RAISES $40,609.07

Remainder of $50,000 Needed to Buy Lot for Sunday School Will Be Obtained This Week.

It required just exactly 30 minutes Sunday morning to raise by subscription a total of $40,609.07 among the congregation of St. Mark's Methodist Episcopal church, which will be used in the purchase of the David Woodward property adjoining the church site on Peachtree street. A new Sunday school building that will cost an additional $50,000 is to be erected on the property.

With only half of the total membership of the church present the stewards in charge of the subscription fund anticipate no difficulty in raising the remaining $9,390.93 of the necessary $50,000 with which to purchase the lot, and the deal will be completed next week, it was announced.

The lot has a 120-foot frontage, and is one of the most valuable pieces of property in the city. The plans of the church in erecting additional facilities for relieving the congestion in the Sunday school room, call for an expenditure of $50,000. It is expected that this money will be raised within the next few weeks, and work

Success Crowns First Municipal Organ Program Reproduced in City's Playground.

SHELDON IS ASSISTED WITH SOLO SELECTIONS

Thousands Hear First Program Transmitted by Constitution to Piedmont Park.

BY JOHN GLEISSNER.
United News Staff Correspondent.
Washington, June 4.—Senators are chafing at the slow progress being made on the tariff bill, which promises grueling work through the dog days, and makes the date of adjournment purely a matter for speculation.

So far, the senate has acted on only 200 of the amendments made by the finance committee in the house bill. The measure has been under consideration for seven weeks. At the present rate, it would not be finally approved inside of a year. Night sessions have been held and leaders have endeavored to expedite votes, but the flow of words has continued, and extraneous matters have found their way to the floor, "wasting" hours of time.

Leaders would not permit the bill to remain before the senate for a year, of course, nor for anywhere near that long. The majority will take heroic measures to curtail delay. Unless senators do this voluntarily, and as irritation increases at the delays, sentiment for the imposition of cloture grows. Not a few senators have political matters "back home" that requires attention before the November elections. All are tired of the hours and hours of tedious debate.

Bonus Bill Waits.
Meantime, the soldier bonus bill is awaiting attention. It promises to provoke considerable debate, using more time. The naval appropriation bill and the ship scrapping bill must be passed. President Harding is exerting pressure for the passage of the ship subsidy, which threatens to develop a protracted controversy. The farm bill would like to have certain agricultural measures enacted, and is disposed to insist on a law to extend farm credit facilities.

Republican senators charge the democrats with filibustering, deliberately. Democrats heatedly deny the charge.

U. S. MEDAL GIVEN CITY OF VERDUN AS VALOR BADGE

Presentation Is Made by Ambassador Herrick. First Decoration of City by U. S. Government.

POINCARÉ REFUTES MILITARISTIC CHARGE

Premier Challenges Truth of Belief That France Is Turning Too Much to Arms.

Verdun, June 4.—If America thinks France is militaristic, let her remember that the spirit of revenge does not die with defeat, and that there are serious dangers still menacing France, Premier Poincaré declared at the presentation of a medal to the city of Verdun by the United States government Sunday. France must support an army to support her reparations claims, he added.

The medal, presented by Ambassador Myron T. Herrick, is the only one ever bestowed on a city by the American government. It is a gift, the ambassador said, "in the name of the congress and the people of the United States as a mark of America's appreciation of the valor of its defenders."

Premier Poincaré, in his address, said the legend had spread in the United States that France is militaristic, and he tried to point out that the position of France must not be taken into consideration in this regard.

Entente Possible.
"It is impossible," he said, "that divergencies of opinion between the allied and associated peoples can be automatically suppressed. Nevertheless, a sincere entente is possible, and the public should not grow nervous during any temporary misunderstandings."

"A legend has been spread in the United States to the effect that France is militaristic. Official denials appear to be insufficient to dispel this legend. But let those who accuse us reflect on the dangers that menace France. Let them remember, also, that the spirit of revenge does not die after defeat."

"The reparations that were promised are still unpaid, and therefore we are obliged to maintain an army to support our claims. Should peace enrich Germany at France's expense, it would be to defeat the cause for which the allies fought. It would be the humiliation and ruin of France."

Herrick's Remarks.
Ambassador Herrick, in presenting the medal, said that without full recognition of the terrific fight the Germans made at Verdun no one could realize how great was the miracle which the French accomplished in withstanding the onslaught.

"But no medal will ever be struck by the United States in commemoration of the battle of Verdun."

Negro Is Killed In Pistol Battle With Policeman

Death Comes After He Had Wounded Negro Woman and Child.

In a gun battle Sunday afternoon with nine policemen, four of whom were equipped with riot pump guns, Mangum Hicks, negro, of 382 Chapel street, was killed by a pistol ball through the brain, after he had seriously wounded a negro woman and a 17-months-old negro baby, and had fired more than twenty bullets at the officers.

The negro, who is said to have been crazed by drink, received two charges or buckshot in the stomach and chest, but continued advancing on Officer A. B. Johnson, shooting as he came. Officer Johnson discarded his pump gun, and pulling his revolver, shot his opponent in the head.

Shooting Starts.
The shooting started at 371 Chapel street, where the negro engaged in a fight with two negro women, Lizzie and Willie Mae Byrd. He ran into

SCHOOL PROGRAM REVISION OPPOSED BY SOUTH SIDERS

J. J. Greer and Dr. Grace Kirkland Issue Statements Announcing They Will Fight Plan.

WANT GIRLS' SCHOOL ON THE SOUTH-SIDE

Change Would Simply Carry Out the Wishes of a Few Politicians, Aserts Dr. Kirkland.

Taking issue with the plan of Councilman J. C. Murphy, who in Sunday's edition of The Constitution advocated the erection of the new senior girls' high school in Piedmont park instead of on a site in the South side, as provided in the report of Dr. Strayer and Englehardt, who conducted the recent school survey in Atlanta, J. J. Greer, widely known Atlanta business man, and Dr. Grace Kirkland, prominent physician, who has taken an active part in civic and municipal affairs, in separate statements, declare the proposition is unthinkable.

Councilman Murphy's plan, as defined Sunday, urged that the new senior girls' high school be erected inside the boundary of Piedmont park proper and as recompense for utilizing this property as a school site, the school commission deed over to the city the tract near Tenth street purchased sometime ago as a prospective site for a boys' high school.

In the survey of Atlanta's school problems made by Dr. Strayer and Dr. Englehardt, recommendations were made that a senior girls' high school be erected in the south side and a senior boys' high school be erected in the north side. Several sites have been offered the bond and site school commission.

TWO GIRLS HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Car Crashes Into Telephone Post When Driver Tries to Catch Her Hat Sunday Afternoon.

Miss Gertrude Rogers, 18 years old, of 14 Williams street, was seriously injured Sunday afternoon when the automobile in which she was riding with Miss Dorothy Dodd, 17, of 8 Williams street, crashed into a telephone pole in Howell Mill road near the end of the city limits.

Both were carried to the Grady hospital in the ambulance of Greenberg & Bond, where it was found that Miss Rogers was badly cut about the head and arms as the result of being thrown against the windshield, which was smashed in the wreck. Miss Dodd was bruised about the chest and legs.

Miss Dodd was driving the machine, and she told Call Officers J. W. Mashburn, Jr., and Paul Williams that the accident occurred when she attempted to catch her hat which the wind had blown off. She also said the steering gear was hard to control at times.

LUMBER DISPOSAL CONTRACT GIVEN TO PHILLIPS' FIRM

U. S. Commissioner at Washington Issues Warrant for Georgian's Arrest, But Withholds Comment.

FIRST DEFINITE STEP IN WAR FRAUDS PROBE

Special Grand Jury Has Studied Evidence in Case, But Indictment Not Yet Reported.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Washington, June 4.—A warrant has been issued by United States Commissioner Hitt for the arrest of J. L. Phillips, chairman of the Republican State National committee for Georgia, charging fraud in the execution of war contracts. Beyond confirming reports that the warrant had been issued, Commissioner Hitt refused tonight to discuss the case.

Phillips, as a member of the firm of Phillips & Stevens, obtained a contract soon after the armistice from the government to dispose of surplus lumber left from cantonment and camp construction and other war building developments, the firm having been designated by a conference of lumber dealers to act as their agent.

Representative Woodruff, republican of Michigan, in a speech recently in the house, asserted that official reports had been filed by government auditors in September, 1921, showing that Phillips & Stevens still owed the government under this contract more than $1,850,000, and that so far as he could learn "no proceedings whatever had been instituted in this connection."

No Indictment Reported.
Although it has been generally reported during the past week that the special grand jury now sitting here on war frauds cases had been engaged in consideration of evidence dealing with contracts for sale of surplus lumber, there has been no statements from any official source to indicate whether the Phillips & Stevens contract had been among those presented.

So far as could be learned the grand jury has yet to hand down its first indictment and issuance of a warrant prior to indictment was declared by some officials to be an unusual, though not unprecedented, procedure.

The lumber contract obtained by Phillips & Stevens called for disposal of spruce, pine, hemlock and fir lumber only, according to the report issued by Representative Woodruff. He asserted, however, that the firm had obtained and sold surplus supplies of more than 50 varieties including much valuable hardwood.

Mr. Phillips resides in Thomasville, Ga., in which section he is reported to own extensive tracts of timber. He also has a home and business interests in Philadelphia.

Woodruff Charges.
The lumber cases were among those referred to by Representative Woodruff, republican, of Michigan. In a speech in the house in April, during which he read an official memorandum from Ernest C. Steward in charge of the contract audit section of the army's finance department, to his superior officer, setting forth the basis for his belief the sale of surplus lumber should be investigated by the department of justice.

Sold Under Contract.
The army's surplus lumber was sold under contract with the government by a firm, Mr. Stewart charged, which had been appointed by representatives of "lumber interests" to act as their agent "for the ostensible purpose of so regulating the disposal of surplus stocks of lumber then held by the government, as not to disrupt or injure the transactions of the commercial trade."

Four kinds of wood were to be disposed of by the original contract, the memorandum said. Notwithstanding this, thirty kinds were sold, "and by questionable agreement between the director of sales and the contractor there was also included many millions of feet of mahogany, cherry, walnut and other very valuable hard woods."

Northwest Florida, Alabama and Mississippi—Generally fair Monday and Tuesday. Tennessee and Kentucky—Generally fair and warmer Monday and Tuesday.

Facts Warrant Charges.
Facts developed by the army's audit, Mr. Stewart asserted, warranted the assumption of gross fraud and collusion. The value of the lumber sold, the audit disclosed, he reported, was $4,097,171 of which the government received $2,848,005, leaving a balance due the government of $1,249,166, which, he said, has never been paid.

Evidence and official statements "on which to base civil and criminal actions," were prepared by army accountants, and forwarded to the department of justice "some eight months ago," according to the Stewart memorandum, which was dated March 1, 1922.

Although 150,000 contracts were investigated and audited by the audit section, Mr. Stewart stated, "it can be said beyond argument that the contract in question is one which for criminal ingenuity is surpassed by none."

The six-story and red-roofed plant of the Imperial Tobacco company was completed two years ago. It is said that work on the improvements will start at an early date.

No details of the plans of the government investigators were made public Sunday, but it was learned that conditions at the federal prison will be probed thoroughly.

NOBLES ENTERTAIN BIG YAARAB PARTY

New Orleans, La., June 4.—(Special.)—Yaarab's two special trains arrived in New Orleans at noon. Jerusalem Temple's band and patrol met the trains at union station and formed a parade with Yaarab's million dollar band, the prize winning patrol of chanters, the famous Oriental band, and nobles of Yaarab, to the shrine mosque where a fine luncheon was served.

Potentate Wayne Gibson, Past Potentate Henry Heinz all made talks. After the luncheon Yaarab's million dollar band gave joint concert with Jerusalem's band at Heintzmann park and the rest of the party was taken in automobiles for a sight-seeing trip around New Orleans.

Yaarab's chautauque gave a few selections at the luncheon and was voted the finest in shirredom. The Oriental band played two numbers and made a hit. Noble T. C. Hadley, a member of Yaarab, one of the old members, who resides in Mexico, Texas, met the party here and was warmly welcomed.

He joined the party here to travel to San Antonio. Yaarab's special are receiving the warmest receptions all along the line. At Mobile, Nobles of Abba Temple were at the station with a hearty hand shake. All the party of over 300 are having the time of their lives. "SPIRIT OF MARTYRS" SUBJECT OF SERMON

Preaching in the pulpit of the East Atlanta Christian church for the first time in three years, Rev. W. E. Moore, pastor of the First Christian church, of Marion, Ind., gave a stirring sermon on "Spirit of the Martyrs."

The supreme need of our day is implicit faith in Christ, such as has been shown by the martyrs of the past," he declared. "Hercules' time was that of powerful strength; the age of the great philosophers was that of mind; but our age is wealth. The house in which the Bible is not frequently read is not the place from whence ministers of the gospel come."

Rev. Thomas Harrison, Railroad Evangelist, Joins Baptist Church

Rev. Thomas H. Harrison, better known as the railroad evangelist, who has been in ill health for the past two years, will again take up evangelist work as his health has greatly improved since a recent operation.

He recently joined the Baptist Tabernacle church and was baptized Sunday night. He was converted while an engineer on the N. C. & St. L. railroad in 1906 and has been conducting revivals since his conversion in different parts of the south. Before joining the Baptist church he was a Presbyterian.

POLICE ARE PROBING THREE THEFT CASES

Burglars entered the residence of W. B. Hughes, 509 Ponce de Leon avenue, Saturday afternoon or early evening, and effected in making their escape with a large volume of loot, including an alarm clock, suit-case, suit of clothes, electric iron and a Colt's revolver.

The robbers also visited the apartments of a Mrs. Hersberg, at the same address, and carried away a black fox fur and a leather suitcase. Entrance was effected by cutting the screen in the back door. Call Officers J. E. McDaniel and John Crankshaw were assigned to the case, but no arrests have been made.

Between $50 and $80 mysteriously disappeared from the bakery shop of Mrs. Vannie Tilden, 307 Peachtree street, Saturday night, according to information furnished by police department. Mrs. Tilden stated that she does not know how or when the money was taken. Officers are investigating.

Burglars entered the home of Morris Reisman, 8 West Georgia avenue, Sunday night between 7 and 11 o'clock, while the family was absent and took $30 in money, a watch and several other articles of value. The burglars entered through the bathroom window.

G. W. Barfield, 300 East Pine street, reported that a negro entered his home and stole a pistol. The burglar became frightened and ran away shortly after he entered the house.

OFFICER CLEARED OF LIQUOR CHARGE

H. C. Walsen, 34 years old, superintendent police officer, who, with F. D. Bryant, a brother-in-law, was fined $51 by Councilman Claude Buchanan, acting recorder in the absence of Judge George E. Johnson, Saturday morning, had his fine remitted by Recorder Buchanan Saturday afternoon and the case was entered as being dismissed.

BRITISH TROOPS BATTLE SINN FEIN

Pettigoe was a Mayo doctor. The driver was sitting with comrades after the capture of the place, when the republicans opened fire with a machine gun from a concealed position, killing him.

Border fighting was resumed today by republicans at Lifford, in the direction of Strabane, in the course of which a special constable was shot while on duty at Camel's Hump.

Military activity in reality began early Saturday night when troops with full fighting equipment marched from Enniskillen along the western side of Lough Erne toward Belleek. Artillery fully equipped for war also rattled along the narrow road.

It was planned to place big guns in position near Roscoe, where they would bombard Maghera castle, Belleek and the fort overlooking it, occupied by sinn fein forces.

Another phase of the operations was the landing of troops on Boa Island, a mile across the channel to Ulster territory occupied by sinn fein forces. This move was carried out with dramatic suddenness. Over 200 soldiers left Enniskillen Saturday afternoon and proceeded to Kesh, a small village off the main road near Colnallyn post office, where several roads lead to Lough Erne. Protected by armored cars, the troops moved down the roads to the shore of Lough Erne, where they boarded boats commandeered earlier in the day from fishermen, were ferried across and preceded with utmost caution to the point of the island nearest Ulster territory.

Meanwhile armored cars and tenders pulled the peaceful roads around Colnallyn. Further along on the road leading to Pettigoe and Lettercarn, where the counties of Fermanagh, Tyrone and Donegal converge, they were under constant fire from sinn fein machine guns.

There was intense machine gun fire from the free state side of the border all day Saturday, and on a six-mile front, without perceptible result.

SCHOOL PROGRAM REVISION OPPOSED

Revision in the south side for a girls' high school, but none have been agreed upon. "It is unthinkable that the proposition mentioned by certain city officials in Sunday's Constitution should receive serious consideration," said Mr. Greer.

The recommendations of the school surveys, brought here at considerable expense and later retained to supervise the building of the school, were to the effect that the Girls' Senior High school should be on the south side. This was shown by indisputable figures to the effect that the majority of high school girls came from the south side. In addition every private girls' school is now on the north side.

"Now it is proposed to completely reverse these recommendations of the surveys—go contrary to the real needs of the greatest number of the school population and shift the whole school program."

"What has happened to the tract already purchased for the boys' school that now makes it unsuitable for the purpose for which it was bought?"

All Are Committed.
"The board of education, the bond commission and the city council have all definitely committed themselves to the tract already purchased for use as a Boys' Senior High school and the resolution in council authorizing this purchase so states in very definite language."

"I do not believe the people of Atlanta will submit to any proposition looking to the switching of tracts, taking part of Piedmont Park in exchange for a piece of $75,000 barren land which has already been bought for a boys' high school."

"The people of the south side desire the Girls' Senior High school placed where it belongs and where it will serve the greatest number. There is no trouble about securing tracts for the school, and while we of the south side have offered and are still offering the most ideal tract yet considered, other than the north end of Grant park, which is the Jackson tract immediately joining the south end of Grant park, only a short distance from the tract first recommended by the surveys, convenient to six car lines, in a desirable neighborhood without a single real objection, and at the most reasonable price of any tract yet considered."

Plan to Resist Change.
Stating that the residents of the south side will never permit the school system plan to be changed to gratify the wishes of a few politicians and advocating the south end of Grant park as the site for the senior girls' high school, Dr. Kirkland declared the stockade site has never been considered as a logical site for a school and that residents of that ward intended to resist the plan of Councilman Murphy.

"The people of the south side will never sit by and see the school system completely changed about," declared Dr. Kirkland, "not with a view to the best interest of our children and future citizens, but simply in order to claim the wishes of a few politicians. The stockade tract has never been remotely considered by any one having expert knowledge of the school system, and while we of the south side are more than anxious to remove the stockade and intend to see that this is certainly done, we are not willing nor do we think it necessary that the school system should be sacrificed in order to accomplish that end."

"There could be no better place for the Girls' Senior High school than at the south end of Grant park and the selection of this site would end the controversy."

BIG AUDIENCE HEARS
POLICE SINGING CLASS

The seating capacity of the recorder's court was taxed Sunday afternoon by the crowd that gathered to participate in and hear the song festival presented by the Atlanta police singing class.

Several selections were directed by Alderman Foster Hunter, of the fifth ward, and those who attended say that he is by no means an amateur at the game.

Professors George and Jack Chance, of Carrollton, and Claude Wynn, of East Point, led in many of the songs. They were present at the invitation of President E. C. Hudson, of the singing class. Mr. Hudson was also on hand to lend enthusiasm and help "Big Six."

The occasion was featured by the splendid singing of the intermediate class of the Woodward Avenue Baptist church, under direction of Miss Bessie O'Quinn.

A short talk was delivered by Dr. C. J. Vaughn, chairman of the board of police commissioners.

Under the terms of a ruling of the British attorney general women are now eligible to hold high court judgeships in Great Britain.

PIANO PUPILS WILL GIVE RECITAL TODAY

A group of piano pupils of Miss Mary Gwyn will appear in a recital at Steinway hall at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon. The pupils will be Misses R. B. Blackburn and Miss Dorothy Collier. Miss Gwyn will present a group of more advanced pupils in a recital to be given Wednesday, June 14.

PREACHERS SCORE
DRY LAW ATTACK

to say that, personally, I could wish there was not one single drop of liquor in the whole wide world. It has trailed the steps of my ancestors and their children like a wolf fence for blood, during all our history on this continent. It has been merciless in its pursuit. I have no peace terms to offer the liquor traffic.

"In the third place, permit me to say that I hope Judge Powell's agitation will be the means of improving prohibition conditions in Georgia. This will not be done by prohibitionists going hog-wild and denouncing Judge Powell as an enemy of good government. Certain it is that liquor flows in Georgia today as we have rarely ever seen it flow. Something is wrong somewhere. The way the present laws are enforced in Georgia do not make for prohibition. The law exhausts itself on the poor devil who buys and drinks a half pint of white lightning and somehow compromises, or makes possible, the operations of those who manufacture and wholesale the damnation.

"There is much ground for criticism at this point in our state prohibition law. If there is a hog root in the fountain you cannot clear the water by blowing into the branch. You must run the hog out. Both Judge Powell and Judge Adams will get a wide and responsive reading in Georgia because the people are disgusted with present efforts at enforcement of the law. We overdo it where it counts for little, and do almost nothing where the main trouble lies. You can't kill snakes by cutting off their tails.

Remarks "Untimely."

Rev. Kendall in his sermon said Judge Powell's remarks were "untimely." In his references to Judge Powell's speech he said:

"I think it is a very serious business that say things destructive when constructive efforts are being made. Judge Powell's remarks were very untimely indeed. If he is a friend to the good cause of prohibition it seems he could have called a conference of the wise and good men of the state and could have undertaken some constructive work ameliorating the conditions he seems to deplore so much. "But it inveighs against law and order to make such statements when the 45 states of the Union have adopted a constitutional amendment making prohibition a part of the constitution. It seems to me to be a spirit of anarchy. We sincerely hope the influence of the address will not have the seeming deleterious effect we fear. "We feel all good people should obey the Scriptures, which call upon us to obey those in authority. The government has made the law and we feel it our bounden duty to obey it."

Dr. Daniel's Position.

Rev. Charles W. Daniel, pastor of the First Baptist church, of which Judge Powell is a member, did not refer to the subject at either the morning or evening services. He made the statement Saturday night that he will not permit the speech of his parishioner to go unchallenged and will give the matter his attention, but in private conference with Judge Powell.

Rev. Dr. R. O. Flinn, of the North Avenue Presbyterian, handled the speech from the pulpit Sunday, and vigorously assailed the statements of Judge Powell. Rev. William J. DeBardeleben, Payne Memorial Methodist; Rev. J. W. Ham, of the Baptist Tabernacle; Rev. D. C. J. Rell, of the First Methodist, and others discussed the question with characteristic candor, and in effect came to the conclusion that regardless of Judge Powell's criticism prohibition has come to stay.

"My sermons for Sunday are prepared," said Dr. Daniel Saturday night, "and I will be unable to discuss the Tybee speech. Judge Powell, however, is a member of my church and I shall give the matter my earnest attention. I shall discuss it from the pulpit within the near future, and also I shall discuss it with him personally."

"Abuse of the Law."

"Its weakness," said Dr. Flinn, "lies in the fact that Judge Powell deals with an abuse of the law rather than with the law itself. His speech was an appeal for high-handed anarchy instead of for law and order. If the law was justified when adopted, it is still justified for there has been no change of conditions to make the law unjust or undesirable. The address was very unfortunate and sought to justify the attitude of scoffers at the law."

Deplores Powell's Attack.

The pastor of Payne Memorial, in preaching upon "The Ideal Home" Sunday morning, took occasion to commend a recent statement of Judge John B. Hutchinson, made in a public address at Riverdale. Judge Hutchinson, the minister said, in appealing for the observance of law and order, both in the homes and the state, illustrated by reference to the eighteenth amendment, and stated that as citizens and officers "we had no right to condemn or question it. That it was a law, and therefore should be respected as such."

The pastor contrasted and deplored the statement of Judge Powell in his recent speech at Tybee before the Georgia Bar association, in which the pastor stated this same amendment was "belittled and ridiculed."

"The unfortunate thing is," he concluded, "if our judges and other constituted authorities, upon whom we naturally depend for leadership in the proper observance of law and order make light of a law that has been sanctioned by an overwhelming vote both of state and nation, what may we expect from the rank and file. We are making a fair bid for the same conditions that have dishonored, dehumanized and disgraced poor, poverty-stricken Russia."

Reform Will Be Permanent.

Dr. Harrell, in his morning sermon, declared that prohibition had come to stay, and that although it may require a struggle, the reform will be permanent. "For," said the minister, "sobriety is right and drunkenness is wrong." The statement was made only in an incidental manner, and Judge Powell's address was not specifically mentioned—the pastor, however, was sufficiently plain for the entire congregation to know to whom he referred.

"Every reform must fight for every inch of ground it gains," said Dr. Harrell, "and often the battle goes hard. An eminent jurist this week attacked the prohibition law and we are told from many quarters that it is a failure. But we need not lose heart. It will go marching on and some day we will have a dry world. It must win, for sobriety, and not drunkenness, is right. In the conflict of this world the victorious power of the gospel and unfailing confidence in the right will give us heart for every struggle. In the world of a righteous God, the kingdom of righteousness must at last triumph. Right is might. We may pin our faith to that."

Rev. Ham's Position.

"God made a terrible mistake when He put a prohibition law in the Garden of Eden. If the contention of Judge Powell, the retiring president of the Georgia Bar association, is to be believed in his attack upon the eighteenth amendment," said Rev. J. W. Ham, "He takes the position that the state is suffering a great moral loss because of the existence of the prohibition law."

"The plain teaching of the prohibition law in Eden was to test man's moral character and call for obedience to a law that was intended for his highest well-being. Plainly Judge Powell would have deprived his ancestors of that moral test. He would have granted them personal liberty and unlicensed indulgence in that which would degrade and destroy."

"God blundered again in giving the Ten Commandments at Sinai. He should have withheld such restrictions because they were too drastic, notwithstanding the fact they were intended for the protection of society and the welfare and happiness of the individual. Judge Powell's logic with respect to the prohibition law would repeat the Ten Commandments, because they are not obeyed by every one."

"The reaction to his published utterances has been statewide and condemnatory in character. I have been hearing from various sections of the state, and usually the opinion expressed is either that of personal rebellion on the part of the speaker to the law or his wish is farther to the thought of his utterance. It is unthinkable that a man, of intelligence the speaker is reputed to have, to make an attack upon the law that has meant more morally, economically, industrially and socially to the commonwealth of Georgia than any other law on the statute book."

View Is Superficial.

"To call any law vicious because there are those who rebel and violate the law is so superficial as to not merit serious consideration. The unfortunate thing about Judge Powell's utterance is that it is untrue and does not represent the overwhelming sentiment in Georgia and yet by reason of his official position delivered at an annual meeting of the bar association it will do harm beyond our state line. It will be broadcast by every liquor agency in the world to those sections of the world where the fight to secure prohibition is now going on."

"His utterance will not affect the citizenship of Georgia in the least. The harm comes from distant states and nations. Judge Powell, in this utterance, has sown the dragon's teeth deep in the souls of that lawless element that may be found in any state or nation. He has made a real contribution toward lawlessness in Georgia. Every bootlegger and distiller will feel protected in a larger measure than ever before."

"The interpretation the lawless ones will place upon his utterance will be that in order to change public sentiment a little more, continue the violation of the law and slay all of the officers who attempt to break up their nefarious practice. The moral forces of our state are to be congratulated that eminent judges, both on the federal and state bench, dissented from Judge Powell's position and condemned his utterance. My opinion is that it will be many a long day before this eminent jurist will catch up with and overcome the influence of his utterance made in such a high place as the Georgia Bar association."

Good Felt—The Foundation Of Good Roofing

On the quality of felt used in asphalt roofing depends its life; as surely as the security of a house depends on the strength of its foundation.

Flex-a-Tile Roofing is built around a base of Richardson felt—uniform in quality and even in texture. Since 1868 The Richardson Company has specialized in the manufacture of fine roofing felt.

This fabric is asphalt-saturated, then perfectly waterproofed by a thick coating of scientifically tempered natural asphalt on both sides.

FLEX-A-TIL HOUSE TOP

When you buy Flex-a-Tile Roofing you buy strength, long life, weather-proof shelter and the beauty demanded for the roof you call "home."

And you'll find that Flex-a-Tile runs the same "all the way through," in a single unit or a car-load lot. It is manufactured to gauge, without hidden flaws. Richardson methods at every step, from raw rags to the finished product, take care of that.

You can lay a Flex-a-Tile roof over old shingling or new sheathing. It will lie flat and stay flat.

Flex-a-Tile Roofing may be obtained in smooth or slate-surfaced rolls; in the form of Standard or Giant Shingles and in a number of other types—each specially suited to one or more roofing purposes.

Big Business Men of Mexico Quite Optimistic About Future

A decided improvement in the commercial interchange between Mexico and the United States may be looked for within the next thirty or sixty days, whether the prospects for recognition get better or not, according to C. W. Strain, general passenger agent of the Gulf Coast Lines, who has just returned from a business trip to Mexico City, says a Houston, Texas, dispatch to The New York Commercial.

"I made a close study of conditions in Mexico and the general business outlook," says Mr. Strain, "and I note that there is undoubtedly a more optimistic feeling on the part of the big business men of that country than there has been at any time during the past two years. The general feeling is that success will attend the efforts of Secretary of Finance de la Huerta in the matter of the refunding of the national debt of Mexico, negotiations to which end are about to be initiated in New York, and it is expected that official recognition of the Obregon government by the governments of the United States, Great Britain and France will follow soon afterward.

"Even without recognition, it is held by some, if the financial question is definitely and equitably settled commercial lines will immediately feel the effect, and a decided improvement in the economic situation may be looked for within thirty or sixty days."

DAYTON SCALES CO. ENJOYS FINE BUSINESS

Leading in the amount of business for the month of May every other branch in the south, in which are included some fifteen or twenty large cities, the Atlanta branch of the Dayton Moneyweight Scales company, with headquarters at 64 West Mitchell street, is justly proud of its sales record for the past several weeks.

R. H. Wolfe, sales agent in charge of the Atlanta branch, has just returned from a visit to Dayton, where a general sales conference was held of agents throughout the country, and in the official organ of the big scales house he is said to have made a commendable record for his work in this section. Special emphasis was laid on his salesmanship, and he was requested to lay before the conference some of the reasons for the success which has come to the Atlanta branch under his management. One of his recent successful sales efforts was in placing the Dayton scales in thirty Purdy markets of the city, operated in connection with the L. W. Rogers grocery stores.

"My success in making sales," said Mr. Wolfe a day or so ago, "perhaps is due more to the product I am selling than to any peculiar or personal fitness I may have. We believe we have the most perfect scales made; our company are the pioneers as inventors and manufacturers of the first kind, and naturally sales are made easier for us by reason of this fact. We are the oldest and largest manufacturers perhaps in the world, and with agencies in every country in the world, our product is universally known."

The Dayton Moneyweight Scales company has maintained offices and display rooms in Atlanta for twelve years. Mr. Wolfe has been with the Dayton company for about a dozen years, though only in Atlanta for the past five years. About the time he came to Atlanta larger and better quarters were opened at 64 West Mitchell street, and a large and complete stock of scales are carried. The parent company manufactures a line of scales for practically every business. Perhaps its largest list of customers is confined to the grocery trade, but it manufactures parcel post scales, scales for the hardware trade, scales for the laboratory, and, in fact, for any business where accuracy in weight and in computing selling price, buying price, profits, etc., are desired.

In addition to its line of scales the company also manufactures meat slicers and cheese cutters, these machines being the very acme of perfection for their kind. In a folder issued for the trade their line and the growth of their business is stressed as follows:

"The Dayton Moneyweight line is complete. There is a scale to meet every weighing requirement. The Dayton Safety Meat Slicer and the Dayton Computing Cheese Cutter enable the merchant to standardize on his equipment. They go hand in hand with Dayton Moneyweight Scales in furnishing man-saving, minute-saving, material-saving devices that protect your profit on every transaction. They are constantly working for you—saving you money and protecting your profits."

"Our business never could have grown to its present magnitude, but for the fact that merchants have realized that in the use of our Moneyweight Systems they are enabled to safeguard the fractional weights and values making up the greater part of their profits."

FORESEES GRADUAL BUSINESS GROWTH

H. C. Blackiston, American representative of Furness, Withy & Co., was a passenger on the Olympic, of the White Star Line, which arrived in New York a few days ago. Mr. Blackiston, who has been abroad for a month, said that the shipping outlook in Europe promised but little change in the immediate future.

There will be no sudden improvement in conditions abroad, he declared, but there will be a gradual and healthy growth of business. "They

WEBB & VARY SHOW BIG SALES INCREASE

Increasing their business 65 per cent for the past four months over the same period last year is the excellent record of the well-known printing house of Webb & Vary.

In view of the conditions existing over the country this is truly a fine showing and one that is very gratifying to the printing concern.

This increase, while being shared by all the many departments of Webb & Vary, is perhaps more largely felt in the printing department alone, though throughout its stationery and office supply departments there has been a noticeable increase.

The growth and progress of the firm of Webb & Vary is doubtless due to many causes, but chief among them is the personality of the firm itself, and the splendid personnel of their entire force. These qualities, plus quality and service in respect to its products, have brought an unusual degree of prosperity to this well-known house.

Webb & Vary was established a little less than ten years ago. Their first printing office was one of modest pretensions. But both being artistic, tasteful printers—and both possessing that strong cordial personality that makes and holds friends—the printing orders grew and grew. In a short time an enlargement was necessary. Again in due time still greater additions, including the most modern machinery, was installed. Finally an engraving plant was added.

Less than two years ago the firm moved into its present large and commodious quarters, built especially for them, and at that time they took on a most complete line of office supplies, including stationery and office furniture.

The officers of the concern are D. W. Webb, president; E. M. Vary, vice president, and R. L. Webb, secretary and treasurer. D. W. Webb is known to his large host of friends as "Dave" Webb, and they swear by him when it comes to putting things over in his big civic way in Atlanta. His term as president of the Ad club of this city, stamped him as a man who knows how to organize and how to do big things, and at the head of this live organization he made many friends. Mr. Vary is a quiet, hard worker, whose chief work, aside from his printing business, lies in his church affiliations and activities. Unassuming, loyal to his friends, he makes and holds friends wherever he goes.

Lee Webb, secretary and treasurer, is one of the successful young business men of the city. He states that conditions have assumed a much more optimistic tone for the past few months. "People are getting away from the 'shopping around' idea," he said. "They are asking for and expecting quality and service. With many of them now it is not so much a matter of price as it is a desire to get something of quality. This is particularly true in the printing business. Firms and individuals are learning that cheap printing—unattractive folders, booklets, letterheads, etc.—is not a business getter, and they are turning to the higher grade of work. They find it is cheapest in the long run."

Webb & Vary have one of the most complete equipped printing plants in the south. They are prepared to execute any kind of order. They do the highest grade of color work. They have an up-to-the-minute engraving plant, bindery and every modern department for high-grade printing. On top of this they do a large business in office supplies, furniture, etc. About seventy-five people are employed, six of whom are busy all the while calling on the city trade.

are neither pessimists nor optimists on the other side of the water," he said. "They are simply confident that shipping conditions and the conditions of commerce in general will improve."

"My company shares the confidence. We are building and when the increase of business comes, we will be prepared to meet it. More and more we are convinced of the usefulness of internal combustion engines, and are equipping our new ships with engines of this type. I am entirely confident that business will improve generally."

LITTLE CHILDREN AID IN CHURCH PROGRAM

Little children of the babies' division of the Martha Brown Memorial Methodist church Sunday school presented an interesting program in connection with baptismal services conducted in the church by Rev. E. G. Thomson, pastor, Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

Promptly at 3:30 o'clock the doors were thrown open, and down the aisles marched a procession of little tots, each bearing his savings in small mile boxes, which were opened. Then a pageant called "Peace Pageant" was presented. Miss Alice Frances Wagner rendered a piano solo, following which little Miss Moore sang. The program was concluded with "Little Mothers," another pageant. Both pageants were written and directed by Mrs. M. E. Tilly, superintendent of Junior Missionary society of the North Georgia Methodist conference. "Christianity, the Highest Object of Human Endeavor," was the subject of Rev. Thomson's sermon delivered Sunday morning. Sunday night he preached on "A Photo of Spiritual Indolence."

NEGRO IS KILLED IN PISTOL BATTLE

Humphries street when Officer A. B. Niles attempted to arrest him, and began shooting at the officer. Officer Niles returned the fire.

A riot call was sent to police headquarters, and the call car loaded with M. B. Johnson, J. W. Mashburn, Sr., E. E. Whitley, E. C. Stigall, C. J. Schillings, W. F. Anderson, E. B. Harbin and J. G. Bowman, rushed to the scene where Hicks was cornered. They surrounded the house, with the negro taking occasional shots at them. He finally made a dash in the direction of Officer Johnson, shooting as he came. Officer Johnson sent two loads of buckshot into his body, but he continued advancing toward him, shooting as fast as he could manipulate his pistol. The officer then stepped aside and sent a ball through the negro's head. Another gun battle was staged about 1:30 o'clock Sunday morning between Patrolmen Hughes and Floyd and alleged negro gamblers, when the officers attempted to raid a house in Piedmont avenue.

About five negroes made their escape, according to the officers, who captured Edward Christler, negro messenger at the postoffice, who gave his address as 12-B Hummick place.

Information obtained from Christler at police station by Call Officers Otis Hewell and Johnny Woods brought about the arrest of another negro postoffice messenger, Ed Smith, whose address is given as 10 Herbert street.

Officers state that Christler and Smith admit being at the house when the raid was attempted, but both deny participating in the shooting. Both are being held without bond at police station, pending a full investigation.

LOSES OUT IN U. S.

ence tonight, the department announced also that termination of Mr. Bakhmeteff's duties as ambassador "had no bearing whatsoever upon the question of the recognition of the soviet regime in Russia, which is an entirely separate matter."

At the same time department officials made public an exchange of letters between Secretary Hughes and Secretary Mellon, of the treasury department, in which cognizance is taken of the charges of misuse of Russian embassy funds, produced in the senate several weeks ago by Senator Borah, republican, Idaho. A detailed statement of the embassy's expenditures is given by Mr. Mellon, whose letter declared that the $187,000,000 advanced by the United States was "used solely for the purchase of obligations of the Russian government in accordance with the liberty loan acts."

Embassy Finances.
Of the $187,000,000 total, the treasury secretary said, $125,000,000 was transferred by the ambassador to the account of the Russian finance ministry, leaving $62,000,000 "for expenditure in this country."

"At the time of the fall of the Kerensky government in November, 1917," the letter added, "the embassy had $56,000,000 deposited in this country of which $10,000,000 was said to be 'the balance remaining from this government's loans to Russia,' the remainder representing moneys derived from British and other sources. The $56,000,000, Mr. Mellon added, together with other sums added through liquidation proceedings all was spent under the supervision of state and treasury officials. The amount of liquidation effected was given at approximately $102,000,000 negotiations regarding which were said to have been virtually completed. Upon Mr. Bakhmeteff's retirement, these negotiations are to be carried forward by Serge Ughet, financial attache of the embassy, who is to continue to enjoy a diplomatic status.

The correspondence between Mr. Bakhmeteff and Secretary Hughes as made public tonight is dated late in April, after Senator Borah had challenged the ambassador's status and had made an unsuccessful attempt to halt him before a senate committee. It was not until early in May, however, that senate discussion of the subject had reached its climax in a list of interrogatories propounded by Mr. Borah on the senate floor but never officially taken note of by either the state department or the embassy.

five nights and a carnival spirit will prevail.

Confetti Battles.
Confetti battles will be in order every night. The quaint Indian music, beating of the tom-toms, snake dances by painted warriors, with all the gala Indian decorations will lend enchantment to the occasion, which is given in order to let the general public have a "look-in" on a real, typical Indian village. Tepees, presided over by a chief and squaw, pretty Indian princesses dressed in the costume of the North American Indian, are certainly going to be attractive to those fortunate enough to visit the wigwam.

One tepee will contain an Indian medicine man who will prescribe for the blues, and any who comes is guaranteed to go away with hilarious laughter filling his soul to the overflow.

If you want your fortune told in regular, old-fashioned Indian manner, then don't fail to come. There will be plenty of refreshments of varied kinds.

Dancing Every Night.

Dancing will be permitted every night to the quaint tunes of an Indian orchestra. Gaily decorated booths will be located everywhere.

To children the trading post and carnival will be particularly fascinating, as it will give each one an opportunity to study Indian lore, their dress and manners. No admission charge will be made.

The trading post will contain several kinds of souvenirs, such as beads, wampum belts, dresses, etc. Receipts will go into a fund to entertain the Great Council when it comes to Atlanta for its annual meeting June 20, 21.

RADIO DEPARTMENT

NOVELTY FIDDLER ON RADIO PROGRAM

Billy Lotz, formerly on the vaudeville stage, will furnish entertainment at 9 o'clock tonight for radio enthusiasts who listen to WDAW. Mr. Lotz was not on the vaudeville stage for a few months, but for many years and has now retired.

Mr. Lotz is rather reticent about talking of his instrument. It isn't much, he says. But while it may be only a cigar box with one fiddle string, he gets music from this arrangement that one would scarcely expect from anyone but a well-trained violinist with a regular four-stringed violin.

In presenting Mr. Lotz tonight The Constitution is not only giving radio listeners a novelty program, but one which will consist of really good music. The program was arranged through M. D. Glendon, secretary of the Atlanta world's fair committee.

Mr. Lotz gives on his one-stringed, fiddle not only the older selections, but popular and classical numbers as well and his program tonight will be a varied one.

FIFTEEN MINUTES OF RADIO EACH DAY

BY EDWARD M. DAVIS

Formerly Technical Electrical Expert for United States Government

LESSON No. 60. THE RADIO FREQUENCY AMPLIFIER.

In order to obtain signals louder than can be secured with a single detector tube using a regenerative circuit it is necessary to employ an amplifier. Amplifiers may be divided into two classes—the radio frequency amplifier and the audio frequency amplifier. The radio frequency amplifier derives its name from the fact that it serves to increase the strength of the radio frequency signal in a receiving set before it passes through the detector tube. The audio frequency amplifier, however, is employed to increase the strength of the signal after it has been changed by the detector tube from an inaudible or radio frequency to an audible or audio frequency.

Both radio frequency amplifiers and audio frequency amplifiers make use of the property of the three element vacuum tube which causes it to function as an amplifier of alternating currents.

Radio frequency amplifiers are designated as one, two or three steps, or one, two or three-stage amplifiers, according to the number of vacuum tubes and related apparatus employed. Vacuum tubes for amplifying purposes are usually specially made for this duty and are designated as amplifying or amplifier tubes.

A single step or stage of radio frequency amplification makes use of an amplifying tube, tube socket and the usual filament current regulating rheostat. In addition to these a special form of transformer must be employed, called the radio frequency amplifying transformer. The primary is connected to the plate circuit of the preceding amplifier tube and the secondary to the grid circuit of the tube. Radio frequency amplifying transformers must be designed for the particular wave length on which signals are to be received.

This is especially so in the case of the shorter wave lengths where a change in wave length of a few meters represents a change in frequency of several thousand cycles. The ratio of primary turns to secondary turns is as low as one to one in radio frequency amplifying transformers for amateur wave lengths.

A vacuum detector, in order to function properly, must have a signal of certain potential impressed upon the grid and for many stages of audio frequency amplification are connected to the detector, signals from the more distant stations are not heard. If, however, several stages of radio frequency amplification are inserted before the signal reaches the detector tube the weaker signals, incapable of operating a vacuum detector, may be built up until a satisfactory signal strength is reached.

Radio frequency amplifiers have been but little used up to the present time due probably to the lack of reliable data for designing them. They are rapidly coming into use in connection with receivers employing a small coil antenna where the initial signal as received is very small and the usual detector and two stages of audio frequency amplification is not sufficient to give a good readable signal in the telephone receivers.

Radio frequency amplifiers should be mounted in cabinets which are carefully shielded (lined with sheet metal) and it is desirable to separate each step of amplification from the other by similar shielding walls. This aids in reducing interaction between tubes.

TWO GIRLS HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Howell Mill road at the time. Mr. and Mrs. William Snider, of 54 West Baker street, who were in an automobile immediately behind them, helped them from the wreck into a nearby house for first aid and treatment before the ambulance arrived.

Mrs. Phillips Injured. Mrs. Emma Phillips, 70 years old, who lives at 88 Woodway avenue, was seriously injured Sunday night when she was struck by an automobile driven by F. H. Floyd, 79 Augusta street.

The accident occurred at Floyd street and Woodway avenue, at 9 o'clock. Mrs. Phillips was taken to Grady hospital, where it was found that her arm was fractured, and that she had sustained a concussion of the head.

Floyd told Captain A. J. Holcomb of the police department, that Mrs. Phillips stepped from a street curbing in front of the automobile. Other persons, however, told the police that Mrs. Phillips had just stepped from a street car and that Floyd passed the car while it was not in motion. The automobile driven by Floyd is owned by his brother, Dr. E. H. Floyd. At police headquarters a charge of reckless driving was docketed against Floyd, and he was released under copy of charge.

Charge Reckless Driving. Another accident Sunday afternoon resulted in a case of reckless driving charges. The car of R. W. Davis, whose address was given as the Cecil hotel.

This grew out of a collision with a street car of the Georgia Railway and Power company, at Spring and Walton streets, about 3:10 o'clock Sunday afternoon. The street car was in charge of Motorman Joe Reeves, of 98 Augusta avenue.

The accident was investigated by Officers J. G. Bowman and R. E. Whately, who preferred charges of reckless driving against Davis.

Two Arrests Made. Eugene Spang, 36 years of age, and his residence at 134 Springdale road, were placed under arrest by Officers Donehue and Barton following a collision Sunday afternoon. Both are said to have been under the influence of whisky.

Lanier, who is said to have been driving the automobile, is held under a $1,000 bond, charged with operating an automobile while under the influence of whisky. Sprattling's bond was fixed at $25.

Another case of operating an automobile while under the influence of whisky was made Sunday, the alleged offender being a negro, Arthur Cuthbert, who lives in the rural district. His bond was fixed at $1,000.

Stewart Not Located.

Glenn Stewart, real estate man who is said to have been operating the automobile Saturday afternoon that seriously injured Miss Nell Perkins, 19, of 45 Forrest avenue, had not been apprehended by the police up to a late hour Sunday night.

The city directory fails to show any Glenn Stewart and the police are puzzled as to the identity of the driver. However, a careful probe is being conducted under the personal supervision of Police Captain A. J. Holcomb.

Miss Perkins was reported to be doing as well as could be expected by physicians at St. Joseph's infirmary Sunday night. She was said to be resting comfortably, although her condition is very critical. Doctors stated that it would probably require 48 to 72 hours to determine just what the end might be.

Miss Perkins was hit by the automobile as she alighted from a street car at Forrest avenue and Courtland street, north and south. With the machine was wrecked against a tree on the left-hand side of the street in the direction of the auto was traveling. The car sustained a fractured skull, a broken collar bone and possibly serious internal injuries.

Paul G. Mains, automobile salesman for the car in which Stewart was driving, was placed under a $1,000 bond by Officer W. A. Chewing, who arrested him immediately after the accident.

In 1880 there were only 2,847,000 females gainfully employed in the United States, and in 1920 the number had increased to 8,591,000, a gain of 221 per cent.

tion of German valor at Verdun, because of our deep and abiding conviction that the German valor and sacrifice were poisoned by the purpose to which they were devoted," Ambassador Herrick said.

"This comradeship between our two countries, sealed in the blood of our bravest and best, is no unsubstantial, ephemeral relationship. It will not evaporate in the heat of the first casual disagreement. The tides of sentiment will rise and they will fall, but the underlying affection will remain, and it will prevail.

Many Crises. "But at this time, when—in the newspapers at least—bystander or sensationalism magnify every difference of opinion into a quarrel, when acrimonious incidents and crises follow each other in swift succession, when enemies are threatened, daily and hourly, and the underlying friendship does not necessarily mean agreement.

"Neither the United States nor England, nor any other of the sincere and true friends of France is going to agree with France or with one another. Friendship never has, and never will prevent disagreements and misunderstandings, whether between individuals or nations. But friendship, if it is real, endures in spite of them."

Bishop W. N. Ainsworth, widely known clergyman, and reputed as one of the most effective pulpits orators of his denomination, preached the morning sermon in the absence of the Rev. S. E. Wasson, pastor of the church. His text was taken from the twenty-eighth verse of the twentieth chapter of Acts.

Immediately after the sermon Judge Price Gilbert, chairman of the board of trustees, announced that the committee would pass around the church which notations of the amount each person desired to subscribe could be made. The church was divided into two sections, north and south. With Joseph A. McCord in charge of the north and W. O. Foote the south side.

W. H. White, as general in charge, directed the collection. The pages were three little girls, Bootie Perkin, Nell Clayton and Bessie White. At the conclusion of the subscription the committee led Mr. McCord's about $1,000.

Another case of operating an automobile while under the influence of whisky was made Sunday, the alleged offender being a negro, Arthur Cuthbert, who lives in the rural district. His bond was fixed at $1,000.

SENATE IRRITATED BY TARIFF DELAYS

accusation, and insist the republicans do as much talking as they. The senate has, in fact, debated hours on the question of who is responsible for the protracted debate.

House Ready To Quit.

The house is about ready to quit work, leaving a number of measures for the next session. Its two biggest problems are Muscle Shoals and the ship subsidy. The military affairs committee has virtually approved the offer of Henry Ford, and will submit formal reports during the week, which will make it possible for leaders to bring up the question the latter part of the week. Long debate is in prospect.

The ship subsidy bill probably will leave the hands of the merchant marine committee within a week. Leaders are uncertain, however, that it can be put through at this session. Democrats will oppose it almost to a man, and they will be joined by representatives from interior states. President Harding is endeavoring to get action, and if the bill is passed it will be due to his efforts.

TRAIN WRECKS AUTO; THREE ARE KILLED

Spokane pleasure resort and Manchester and was backing toward Warm Springs to return a picnic crowd to Manchester to connect with the main line when the accident occurred.

According to witnesses, the Martins had been spending the day at the home of his sister, Mrs. W. S. Lunsford, about fifty yards from the railroad crossing. Shortly before train time they prepared to return to their home in Manchester. It seems that some difficulty was experienced in starting the car and it was finally rolled off down a gentle slope to the railroad track in order to start it. The machine is said to have been going at a brisk rate when it crashed into the first coach pushed across the roadway by the backing locomotive. The force of the impact was great enough to demolish the first two coaches.

Mrs. Martin and her baby suffered injuries only about the head. Mr. Martin's body was mangled. The automobile was practically demolished and the motor was found under the train. The victims were dead before onlookers could reach them.

The bodies were taken to Manchester where funeral services are to be held.

Atlanta police were asked Sunday night to arrest L. P. Skinner and Joe Coleman, employees of the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic railroad, who are said to have operated the train which crashed into the automobile at Warm Springs killing three people. The request to arrest the two men was made by Deputy Sheriff J. A. Hembree, of Manchester, in a telephone message to Police Captain A. J. Holcomb. It was stated in the message that the railroad men were on their way to Atlanta on a freight train.

The Involuntary Vamp

Who's Who in the Story.

Diana Langley, who possesses a radiant degree of quality of "fire" wished for her at birth by her father, Mr. Langley, a wealthy banker, and her mother, Mrs. Langley, a woman of beauty to whom Diana is devoted for years, and who is devoted to her, and is gently told by him that he never married her because there is a trace of insanity in his family. To soothe her pride, she elopes with and marries.

Stephen Dale, a young navy officer, whose mother, Mrs. Dale, is sentimentally interested in Marjorie Langley, at the same time that Stephen is a devoted admirer of Diana's hand. Young Dale is ordered to California and on the day Diana leaves she discovers that Dale is coming home to her to curtail a yachting trip to see her. She also discovers that Alex is jealous and dictatorial and meeting with complete disillusionment, begins a flirtation with Lynn Johnston, an old acquaintance, whom she meets on the train. Getting off the train for a bit of rest, she and Johnston are left behind at a small Mexican town.

After discovering that there is no means of leaving the town that night, they are met by a strange horseman, who is Diana's father, Mr. Langley, who is in the town and against Johnston's wishes, Diana accepts.

After resting at the ranch, Diana received a note from Marjorie saying that Johnston would not be in the town alone with Marjorie, who informs her that Johnston is seriously ill and will be days recovering.

INSTALLMENT XXXI.

An Amazing Proposal.

Despite her trace of anxiety, born of Lynn Johnston's suspicion that Pedro Dominguez's hospitality might not be so generous and unmotivated as it appeared on the surface, Diana heartily enjoyed her meal.

Dining alone with a handsome Spaniard whose black eyes were eloquent of admiration was in itself pleasant. The scene, too, was redolent of romance; the table with its lace-cloths, napery and shining appointments lit with the handsome candelabra; the stone-carved balcony opening upon a patio from which rose the scent of night-blooming flowers; the splash of a fountain somewhere in the darkness, and brooding over all, the mysterious hush of the desert that lay gleaming in the moonlight almost outside the hacienda walls.

The coffee came in a silver container, gold-lined, and Diana exclaimed over its excellence, while her host lit her cigarette from the flame of the candle.

"Marie Dolores, my cook, has not lived in vain if she is praised from lips so beautiful," said Dominguez softly, his dark eyes intent upon her face.

Diana flushed a little, but her laugh was pleased. She was content to resist the admiration of this bold stranger. His compliments differed so strikingly from the less graceful but more sincere ones of such men as Ted Saunders, Lynn Johnston, or Alex Leigh.

Quite unconsciously Diana listed her husband last in her mental category. At thought of her husband, something approaching home-sickness assailed her. She had a swift vision of the Bevan's home on Long Island, and the house party that was still in progress. There would be music and laughter and couples dancing there, and the motor road outside the gate would be brilliant with the headlights of cars en route to the country club.

to still her breathing. Dominguez, too, was silent. There was no sound there—only the mysterious hush of the desert.

"What is it, senorita?" Her host was on his feet instantly with the peculiar pantherish grace characteristic of him. "Surely something frightened you. You look—"

"Nothing," declared Diana hastily, "but it is late. I am detaining you, and you have been so kind."

"You have given me much happiness tonight, senorita. Surely you will not deprive me of your charming presence so early an hour?"

"Permit me! There is a view most well worth seeing from the veranda which every night she gave me the moon. Will you not come and look at it with me?"

A surprise.

It seemed absurdly childish to Diana to decline and scarcely gracious to accept. She hesitated, but she was not alone in her apartment so soon after dining.

When they stepped out of the long window onto a balcony hung with flowering plants in quaint carved baskets and porch furniture, the equal of the most correct Long Island wicker, Diana uttered an exclamation of surprise. But her amazement was lost when she saw that she gave as good as she got. The outward sweep of her host's white-laced dress.

Beneath her stretched the desert, immense, interminable, brooding. Mile upon mile of unrelenting gleam in the moonlight, broken only with the shadow cast by giant cacti. A single star shone brightly in the west.

"You are cold," asked Dominguez quickly.

Diana shook her head.

"No, only a little bit frightened. And yet it has a stupendous lure. I could never grow weary of watching it. I think I shall remember this always."

"Must you remember?" he asked softly, drawing nearer to her.

"I'm afraid that I don't understand."

"Need you ever—go away?"

Diana looked at him blankly.

He was very close. His slender hand touched her cheek, and she felt the heat of his hand and his eyes held hers.

"This Senor Johnston," he said with apparent irrelevance, "is he very rich?"

"The thought of ransom flashed instantly across Diana's consciousness. Was that to be Dominguez's game? Could that be the secret of his hostility?"

She forced herself to speak carelessly.

"Why no. I don't think Mr. Johnston has any money at all. Why do you ask?"

"Ah!" Dominguez drew a deep breath. "Then it will be simple."

"That will be simple!" demanded Diana.

"Listen," Dominguez's hands left the sash and with which they had been toyed, and closed swiftly over Mr. and Mrs. Langley's hands.

"I am rich, very rich. We shall send Senor Johnston about his business with a goodly recompense. And you, my beautiful girl, shall remain here and become my wife."

What the Atlanta Y. W. C. A. Girl Reserve department is and what its program includes, defined in general as being a part of the national movement of the Young Women's Christian association for younger girls in the open country, towns and cities.

The Y. W. C. A. Girl Reserve grades school, high school and younger girls in business and industry, through normal, natural activities, the habits, insights and ideals which will make them responsible women.

The Girl Reserve club's plan includes three groups of adolescent girls, i. e., grade school, high school and younger girls in business and industry. The unit of the girl reserve organization is the corps, made up of ten or twenty girls, under the direction of a competent leader called an adviser.

A girl reserve work for honors and her slogan is to face life squarely, her purpose to find and give the best in life.

The little group on the platform passed, undecided whether to descend or to re-enter the car.

"This is no time for weakness," muttered Mr. Langley. "Follow me!" He descended and beckoned to the chauffeurs of a couple of cars that were waiting.

"Count you go with the ladies," he ordered. "Drive on through the town. Stabb and I will follow."

Not a hand was raised against them. The car drove slowly up a lane that opened through the mass of people, who, except for their deadly chant, might have been garbed from stone.

Stabb, his arms raised threateningly, started to speak, but Mr. Langley restrained him.

"Let me do the talking," he said, and stepped forward. "Now, men, what's the trouble? Don't be afraid to speak out."

There was no answer.

"Who is your leader? Let him come forward."

"What are you afraid of?" shouted Stabb.

"Shut up!" Langley commanded. "Well, men, I'm ready to hear your grievances. I'll be in town today and tomorrow. Go back to work and send your spokesman to see me. With coolness and dignity he walked across to the waiting automobile, followed closely by Stabb.

The car threaded its unobscured way out and caught up with the other machine, which had been halted on the edge of another smaller crowd at the intersection of the two main streets, where stood a statue of William Langley, founder of the steel plant.

Across the street like a barrier stood a row of men and women, holding a number of banners. There was no hostility in their manner, but they were evidently determined that the foreign inscriptions should not be ignored. Besides, you must remember that European customs are different. The morals of the high nobility must not be judged by our narrow standards.

The conversation was interrupted by the arrival of Mrs. Brook.

AN HEIR AT LARGE

CHAPTER XXXIX.

"Impossible!" exclaimed James Stabb, hoarsely. "They wouldn't dare!"

"But they have!" whispered the excited messenger. "They've all laid down their souls and are waiting at the station."

A great crowd thronged the approaches to the station—men packed together in front, and hundreds of women pressing forward on the outskirts. A smile of gratified surprise lit Mr. Langley's face.

He thought they had come to welcome him, but as no burst of cheering arose, he instantly sensed more serious business. He hesitated, then turned to wait the appearance of Mr. Stabb. That sea of silent, sober faces staring at him was appalling.

A moment later the manager stepped onto the platform and a great clamor burst.

"Down with James Stabb! Down with James Stabb!"

So that was their game! He turned a sickly white, wavered a moment, and then, regaining control of himself, he stepped forward and set a story. His eye swept the crowd for a leader.

"Down with Stabb! Down with Stabb!" It was an ominous chant, and Stabb realized that now or never he must assert his authority.

"What does this mean?" he shouted. "Why aren't you at work?"

"Down with Stabb!" came the resounding answer. "We'll work no more under James Stabb!"

The little group on the platform passed, undecided whether to descend or to re-enter the car.

"This is no time for weakness," muttered Mr. Langley. "Follow me!" He descended and beckoned to the chauffeurs of a couple of cars that were waiting.

CHAPTER XXXIX.

"Impossible!" exclaimed James Stabb, hoarsely. "They wouldn't dare!"

"But they have!" whispered the excited messenger. "They've all laid down their souls and are waiting at the station."

A great crowd thronged the approaches to the station—men packed together in front, and hundreds of women pressing forward on the outskirts. A smile of gratified surprise lit Mr. Langley's face.

He thought they had come to welcome him, but as no burst of cheering arose, he instantly sensed more serious business. He hesitated, then turned to wait the appearance of Mr. Stabb. That sea of silent, sober faces staring at him was appalling.

A moment later the manager stepped onto the platform and a great clamor burst.

"Down with James Stabb! Down with James Stabb!"

So that was their game! He turned a sickly white, wavered a moment, and then, regaining control of himself, he stepped forward and set a story. His eye swept the crowd for a leader.

"Down with Stabb! Down with Stabb!" It was an ominous chant, and Stabb realized that now or never he must assert his authority.

"What does this mean?" he shouted. "Why aren't you at work?"

"Down with Stabb!" came the resounding answer. "We'll work no more under James Stabb!"

The little group on the platform passed, undecided whether to descend or to re-enter the car.

"This is no time for weakness," muttered Mr. Langley. "Follow me!" He descended and beckoned to the chauffeurs of a couple of cars that were waiting.

"Count you go with the ladies," he ordered. "Drive on through the town. Stabb and I will follow."

Not a hand was raised against them. The car drove slowly up a lane that opened through the mass of people, who, except for their deadly chant, might have been garbed from stone.

Stabb, his arms raised threateningly, started to speak, but Mr. Langley restrained him.

"Let me do the talking," he said, and stepped forward. "Now, men, what's the trouble? Don't be afraid to speak out."

There was no answer.

"Who is your leader? Let him come forward."

"What are you afraid of?" shouted Stabb.

"Shut up!" Langley commanded. "Well, men, I'm ready to hear your grievances. I'll be in town today and tomorrow. Go back to work and send your spokesman to see me. With coolness and dignity he walked across to the waiting automobile, followed closely by Stabb.

The car threaded its unobscured way out and caught up with the other machine, which had been halted on the edge of another smaller crowd at the intersection of the two main streets, where stood a statue of William Langley, founder of the steel plant.

Across the street like a barrier stood a row of men and women, holding a number of banners. There was no hostility in their manner, but they were evidently determined that the foreign inscriptions should not be ignored. Besides, you must remember that European customs are different. The morals of the high nobility must not be judged by our narrow standards.

The conversation was interrupted by the arrival of Mrs. Brook.

CHAPTER XXXIX.

"Impossible!" exclaimed James Stabb, hoarsely. "They wouldn't dare!"

"But they have!"

Extensive Fluctuations In Last Week's Market

New Orleans, June 4.—Fluctuations in the cotton market this week were wide, the trading market standing at their highest 10 to 26 points above the level of the preceding week's close, and at their lowest 72 to 119 points under. The range of prices was 88 to 137 points, but the net changes on the week were small, amounting to losses of 17 to 25 points. It was a week of fluctuations, encouraged mainly by the first condition report of the season from the government. July traded up to the new high level of 21.02 cents a pound in the opening session of the week, after which it fell off to 19.75, finally closing at 20.50. Spot prices were unchanged on the week through at 20.50, but the opening of the week was a middling. On the close of this week last year middling stood at 19.63.

The condition report was the big event of the week and the percentage of 68.6 was somewhat above the average of expectations in this market. It immediately following the report on the Friday session a decline of 32 to 33 points made the market appear to be out, and when buyers became aggressive the market bulged in a sensational way, rising 103 points on the strongest month. This helped to make the net changes for the week less unfavorable than they appeared likely to be just before bureau day. It was generally considered here that a report of 69.6 per cent of normal on May 25 indicated a yield in the neighborhood of 10,500,000 bales, which was considered far under the requirements of the world. It was pointed out that the selling immediately following the report was due to the effect on opinion of private forecasts of condition of as low as 65.0 per cent and not because the condition figure itself was high. The more conservative element used as the main comparison for the report the ten-year average of condition for May 25 of 74.6.

Weather conditions of the week were not considered satisfactory because too much rain fell in many sections of the belt and temperatures were generally too low for the good of the plant. There was much complaint of grassed fields and sections both in the eastern and western divisions of the belt complained of great numbers of boll weevils. The receipt at Texas points of the first new bales of the season on Friday, June 2, caused an aggressive market bulged in a sensational way, rising 103 points on the strongest month. This helped to make the net changes for the week

Offering of New Bonds Again Is Under Average

New York, June 4.—New bond offerings last week again fell below the $100,000,000 average which has been maintained since the first of the year, the total being approximately $77,000,000. Foreign issues totalling approximately $30,000,000 were the feature, these including the $24,000,000 25-year bonds of the republic of Bolivia and the 25-year, 40,000,000 guilder issue of the Argentine United works, which were offered to yield about 6.80 per cent. Bond prices were irregular. There was steady profit-taking in the liberty issues, but international war floatations were generally higher. However, British bonds showed no response to the higher rate for sterling, and Latin-American and Scandinavian municipal issues were firm. High-grade industrials and rails were generally firm, but with the exception of Texas and Eastern the speculative issues registered irregular declines. Southern Pacific-Central Pacific collateral trust 4 per cent bonds registered a gain of 11 points upon the announcement of the supreme court decision dissolving those properties, but half of this gain was lost later in the week.

Several foreign issues are in prospect this week. They include the $7,000,000 City of Prague loan, the $6,000,000 City of Montevideo loan, an issue of $1,500,000 of the Territory of Hawaii, and another large loan, the nature of which is being kept secret for the present.

Despite the stiffening of money rates, the local market still shows a tendency to absorb the heavy new offerings without much trouble. There has been no substantial change in the interest rates here, but London bankers who endeavored to sell bonds half per cent higher met with little success, according to cable advices. The Bolivian loan here last week was oversubscribed within half an hour after the books were opened. Among the other principal offerings last week were $3,165,000 30-year, 4 1/2 per cent and direct obligation bonds of Norfolk, Va., to yield 4.50 to 4.65; $2,000,000 one to twenty-year, 5 per cent Milwaukee, Wis., municipal improvement bonds, offered to yield 4.42 per cent; $8,000,000, 39-year 5 1/2 per cent prior lien and refunding mortgage bonds of the Cincinnati Gas and Electric company, offered to yield 5.60; $12,150,000 25-year, 6 per cent first and refunding mortgage bonds of the Tennessee Electric Power company, offered to yield 6.30; $3,334,000 three-year, 5 per cent bonds of the province of Manitoba offered to yield 5 3/8; $3,750,000 in 20-year, 7 per cent first mortgage sinking fund bonds of Robbins and Myers company, offered to yield 7.25; $3,000,000, 30-year, 5 per cent bonds of the Louisville Joint Stock Land bank, offered to yield from 4.80 to 5 per cent, and $3,283,500 one to thirty-year, 6 per cent equipment notes, to yield 5.10 to 5.70 per cent.

All-Colored Fight Card Tonight; Sam Langford and Flowers Will Fight

Fight Card Twice Postponed Will Start at 8 O'Clock—Great Battles Are Expected.

BY MIKE THOMAS.
The fight tonight at Ponce de Leon baseball park between Sam Langford and Tiger Flowers, appears to be one of those battles that pugilistic fans count time from. This fight has been postponed twice on account of the rainy weather that turned Ponce park from a baseball ground into a swimming and fishing preserve, and a place totally unsuitable to the holding of fistfighting engagements. On account of this delay both the fighters are in wonderful shape and both are actually anxious to get into the ring and settle, once and for all the question as to whether youth and perfect condition can out-battle experience and skill in the ring.

Langford is a veteran of more fights than nearly any other fighter still actively in the ring and he has fought all over the world. Sam says that he was never knocked out but once in his long career and this was by Harry Wills. When asked just how good Wills really is, he smiled in a knowing way and said: "Well, if he ever fights Dempsey, my money will be with and on the present champion. Dempsey is the greatest fighter that I have ever seen. He hits twice as hard as Jim Jeffries and is as fast in the ring as James J. Corbett."

BOTH FIGHTERS HAVE BEEN WORKING.
Both Flowers and Langford have been working every day in preparation for this engagement and both have expressed themselves as being in the best condition possible. Flowers is always in condition, for that matter, and the workouts that he has been going through every day at the Marietta street gym, he has opened the eyes of the fans who have gone there to see how the fighters really looked.

Langford is one of the most entertaining gym workers that most of the local fans have ever seen in action. He knows a thousand little tricks that have been picked up in his years of fighting and he trots out a new series of these every afternoon.

FLOWERS HAS ONE CHANCE.
The Brunswick Battler has but one chance with the Boston Tar Baby, and this is to stay away from him and box. If Langford ever gets the Tiger into a corner the Langford-Flowers fight is going to be finished in about fifteen seconds.

Langford does not seem fast except with his fists. These move with unbelievable accuracy and speed. He gets all the drive in his punches with his shoulders. He seems not to throw his weight into his punches, but when one of his hooks lands, the party on the receiving end usually slips across the ring on his ear, or some other prominent part of his personal anatomy.

Whether Flowers will do this or not depends entirely on whether or not Sam hits him solidly.

However, the fans here who have seen Flowers battle are going to be amazed at the improvement in this fighter in the past few months. Tiger was always a fast worker in the ring, and his mystifying left hand, that has made monkeys out of a lot of fighters, looks better and stronger than ever before. It lands often and hard, and Langford is going to have to take good care that Flowers' left hand is kept covered all through the fight.

THE PRELIMS INTERESTING.

The preliminaries for this card have been arranged carefully, and the same fighters who were billed to appear on the bill last Tuesday night have been held here in Atlanta for this show. Billie Hooper will fight Rough-House Ware in the semi-wind-up. Billie's work, that he has been doing with Langford, is going to help him stand off the attack of this rough, tough fighter that he has been matched with. Dynamite Dixon and Flash Hawkins are billed to go ten rounds to a decision, and in the opener Kid Davis will fight Ed Hawkins six rounds.

Tickets are on sale at Cheser's Place, at Julian Prade's and at Worthing's Smokehouse. A separate section has been reserved for the colored fans, and a separate box office will be open on the night of the fight to take care of those who wish to purchase tickets at the gate. The usual admission prices rule.

PICNIC OF CENTRAL CHURCH POSTPONED

Owing to the inclement weather, the committee arranging the annual picnic of the Central Presbyterian church has postponed the date of the outing from next Tuesday until a week later.

THIS IS NO TIME to get fresh with the little, mild-looking guy in the crowded street car. You may out-scale him 20 pounds and out-reach him by eight inches, but discretion is still a salutary virtue with so many thousands of school boys, office-hands and laundry clerks spending their spare time learning to box.

THERE HAVE BEEN a dozen big tournaments in New York this winter and the amateurs have shown enough skill to inspire caution in the bloke who aims to start casual trouble here and there about a big city.

MOST BUSINESS has throttled down to peace speed. But Sunday chauffeurs insist on their weekly bumps.

Rejuvenated Crackers
Are Expected to Climb
Rapidly During Week

With Lookouts and Vols as Opposition on Home Soil, String of Victories
Is Foreseen.

BY MIKE THOMAS.

Early yesterday the Atlanta Crackers eased back into town from a most successful invasion into the realm of the Birmingham Barons, where Bill Rariden's boys took a two-game series from the Slagtown Swatters. More important than the winning of the two games was the losing of the "two game only" winning streaks just that has been perched on the shoulders of the Atlanta club like an old man of the sea since the season started. Since this was done, it is the opinion of this correspondent that the long looked for reversal of form on the part of the Crackers is at last an actuality, and that they are going to win a large number of ball games. This afternoon the Crackers play hosts to the Chattanooga Lookouts in the first game of a two-game series, and then the Nashville Vols arrive in town for a four-game series on the 7, 8, 9 and 10. The Crackers should take the majority of these games, and if the present morale of the team for a mighty unpleasant few days, because the locals are bound and determined to win all these games. This will be a clean sweep in three series, and a wonderful start toward the top of the heap. Every man on the team is in there fighting all the time and the Crackers are getting pitching that any team can win with, and with the offensive power that the Crackers have developed—the clubs that have taken taking game after game from them had better watch their step—and closely.

BABE HITS THIRD HOMER

New York, June 4.—Babe Ruth made his third homer of the 1922 season in the game which the Yankees won from the Athletics 8-to-3 at the Polo grounds Sunday before a cheering mob of 28,000. Harris pitching for the Athletics when the Bam went to bat in the fifth with two men on and one out. Harris stood helpless watching the Bam's slam go sailing clear over the right field pavilion. Ruth was up five times. He fanned in the first with one on and one out. He flied out in the fourth. When he went up in the seventh with two on and one out he was walked and when he went up again in the eighth with two on and one out he got another walk. Both times he died on base.

Walter Johnson Loses.
Washington, June 4.—Boston defeated Washington 2 to 1 today when

BREWERTON WINS MATCH

This newspaper men's golf tournament for the Southern Enterprise trophy, that has been keeping a large number of the local "Fourth Estate" occupied for quite some time, has finished the first round, and this standard southern newspaper has still one member of its large and promising golf team still in the running. This remaining entry is Pat Hammond. This correspondent was eliminated by Harry Stearns on Saturday, and Cliff Wheatley was eliminated by A. W. Brewerton, yesterday, by the score of 8 up and 6 to play.

This match was followed by a large gallery among whom were Oscar B. Keeler, Morgan Blake, Edward Danforth and Manuel Manasse. Mr. Wheatley appeared on the course in a brand-new outfit of golfing regalia, which should have taken off at least ten strokes from his normal game, but instead of doing this it seemed to throw him completely off, and Mr. Brewerton, whose handicap allowed him only one stroke on Mr. Wheatley, proceeded to lay him out in a workmanlike manner. The second-round matches will be completed by Wednesday night.

Key Defeats Keiffer.
The final match in the first round, between Lambdin Key and Johnny Keiffer, both of the Journal, went an extra nine holes and Key won, 4 and 2. This was the largest margin of the tournament to date, and both contestants were pretty well shot out at the eighteenth green, where they pulled an exhibition of bad putting. Key had three putts for a win on the green and threw away his chance.

Trader, engineer, carpenter, overseer, stock-raiser, agriculturalist, prospector and master mariner. Mrs. Elizabeth Mahony, for the first three years, has been the uncrowned queen of a little Pagan kingdom, Surest Island, which lies at the extreme southeastern corner of Papua.

Ferguson won over the veteran Johnson in a pitcher's battle.

CHAPTER VII.

There followed a time when the black waters of nethermost London closed over Douglas's head. He struggled and fought to the last gasp, but in the end the great stream carried him away on her bosom, and with scarcely a sob he watched all those wonderful rose-colored dreams of his fade into empty space. He was one of the flotsam and jetsam of life. He was a fool to have reckoned himself a writer. It was the lurch which had misled him. He cursed the lurch, its editor and all connected with it. That was at the time when he had sunk lowest, when it seemed to him, who only a few days ago, had looked upon life as a marvelous panorama of life and color and things beautiful, that death after all was the one thing to be desired. Yet he carried himself bravely through those evil days. Every morning he stripped and swam in the Serpentine, stiff enough after a night spent out of doors, but ever with that vigorous desire for personal cleanliness which never left him even at the worst. As soon as his clothes fell into rags about him he passed the appearance of a madman, whose face and hands were spotted, and who carried himself even to the end with a sort of elegant grace as though he were a man in masquerade. One night, with twitching fingers and face drawn white with pain, he turned away from the crowded streets toward the Strand, and into a seat, and picking up the half of a newspaper, read the smug little account of a journalist who had spent a few hours a day perching on a plum. As he read he laughed softly to himself, and then, clutching the paper in his hands, he walked away to the Embankment, up Netherland avenue, and into the Strand, and a few inquiries he found the offices of the newspaper, and marched boldly inside. A vast speculation, the enterprise of a millionaire, the Daily Courier, though it sold for a half-penny, was housed in a palace. In a gothic chamber, like the hall of a chapel, hung with electric lights and filled with a crowd of workers and loungers, Douglas stood clutching the fragment of a newspaper still in his hand, looking around for someone to address himself to—a strange figure in his rags, wan, starving, but something of personal distinction still clinging to him. The boy looked at him, and a mahogany partition at him and opened a trap door.

"Well?" he asked sharply. "Do you want papers to sell?" This is the wrong entrance for that, you know. "I want to see someone in authority," Douglas said; "the sub-editor, if possible."

The boy closed the trap-door and withdrew. In a few minutes a young man, smartly dressed, with sparse mustaches and a pine-needle, came out of a door opposite Douglas's. "Want to see me?" he inquired tersely. "I'm an assistant editor."

Douglas held out the fragment of paper.

"I've just read that," he said. "Picked it up on a seat. It's badly done. The man's only sat down on the outside of the thing and sketched. It isn't real. It couldn't be. No one can write of starvation who merely sees it written in the faces of other people. No one can write of vagabondage who is playing at vagabondage."

The assistant editor looked his visitor up and down, and nodded quietly. "If this sort of thing is like everyone's interest your readers," Douglas said, "give me pen and paper and I will write of the thing as it is. I am homeless, and I am starving. The loneliness that your man writes of so prettily I will get down in black and white. Man, I am starving now, and I will write it down so that everyone who reads shall understand. I have lain slumbering with the rain beating on my face and I have seen strange things done in the underworld life where hell is. Give me a chance and I will set down these things for you, as no one has ever set them down before."

Douglas gave a little lurch, swayed and recovered himself with an effort. The sub-editor looked at him with interest.

"Do you drink?" he asked quietly.

"No," Douglas answered. "I'm faint for want of food, that's all. Give me pen and ink, and I'll give you what I write, pay me for it. You don't stand to lose anything and I'm—I'm—"

The sub-editor took a small piece of gold from his pocket and interrupted him.

"That's all right," he said. "We'll see what you can do, anyway. But you must have something to eat, first. Let me give you this on account; now go straight away and get a feed and go straight away and get a room with a glass of wine. I'll have a room ready for you when you get back."

Douglas drew a little breath. His fingers closed upon the piece of gold. There was a glare in his eyes which had almost vanished for a moment to let his thought rest for a moment upon food. He, who was fighting the grim fight against starvation, was spoken in a whisper, for his voice was almost gone.

"How do you know that I shall come back?"

"I am content to risk it," the sub-editor answered. "Come back after an hour's time and ask for Mr. Rawlinson."

Douglas staggered out, speechless. There was a sob in his throat and a mist of tears before his eyes. At midnight a man sat writing at a desk in a corner of a great industry, of hanging lights, a hissing of typewriters, the monotonous dictation of the reporters, the tinkling of his phone bells. When they asked him whether the noise would disturb him, he only smiled grimly. He was a box brought him pen and paper. Then of cigarettes alone, and no sound in the great room was more constant than the scratching of his pen across the paper.

Many curious glances were cast upon him, the man in rags with those burning eyes, who wrote a thousand words in a few minutes. He was one of the flotsam and jetsam of life. He was a fool to have reckoned himself a writer. It was the lurch which had misled him. He cursed the lurch, its editor and all connected with it. That was at the time when he had sunk lowest, when it seemed to him, who only a few days ago, had looked upon life as a marvelous panorama of life and color and things beautiful, that death after all was the one thing to be desired. ten his way on to the staff of this

The other man was watching Douglas as though fascinated.

"He has written his way into greater things," he murmured. "It makes one feel like a backstreet 'penny-a-liner' to read work like that."

"Not likely. If there's such a thing in the world as inspiration he's got it now. Don't miss a line. Let him write till he faints, but have some one watch him and give him a stiff whisky and soda directly he stops."

"I shall stay myself," Rawlinson said. "It's an 'off' day tomorrow, anyhow. Come and have a drink."

From behind and below came the roar of machinery, rolls of wet proofs came floating into the room at every moment. Now and then a hansom set down a beleaguered reporter, who passed swiftly in his work, taking off his hat and his coat, and then the sparrows began to chirp, dawn lightened the sky, and strange gleams of white stole into the vast room.

Rawlinson rushed up too late to save him. Douglas had swayed for a moment, and then fallen over sideways. The boy looked at him, and a mahogany partition at him and opened a trap door.

"Well?" he asked sharply. "Do you want papers to sell?" This is the wrong entrance for that, you know. "I want to see someone in authority," Douglas said; "the sub-editor, if possible."
